Major Clements, our ideal of ar old Kentucky gentleman, drove over from his farm on Saturday for the avowed purpose of ascertaining the facts about Crayneville being a suburb of Marion. The solemn magnnificence of Friday's opening phase of these last rites was duly maintained. Perhaps the stately grandeur of the sorrowful pageant through the swarming streets of London, with hundreds of thousands of mourners forming a black border to the route, will never be surpassed. An Absence of Black.

There was in Victoria's funeral procession an absence of that black ceremonial generally connected with the final progress to the grave. The coffin was drawn by cream colored horses. Then came the carriages for the queen and the princesses. They were the state carriages, used on the occasion of the queen's jubilee, with beautiful, gold-mounted harness and trappings. The horses were ridden by postillions in scarlet jackets, with only a narrow band of crepe on their arms, as a mark of the great change. The carriages were closed.

Every Head was Bared. Following the carriages and preceded by an officer came an object at which every officer in the animated throng instinctively came to the salute and every head was bared.

It was the little khaki-colorer gun carriage which was to carry Queen Victoria's remains from Victoria to Paddington station. The eight Hanovarian cream-colored horses which also drew the late queen on the occabe allowed to return to the Philip- sion of the jubilee were used. FANCIES OF FASHION.

Extreme Length of Luxury Seems to Have Been Reached.

The Gowns of the Well-Dressed Woman of To-Day Are Sumptuous Creations and Beautiful in the Extreme.

[Special New York Letter.] WOULD really seem as though luxury in feminine dress and the thousand and one accessories that go to make up the costume of the hour could never have been pushed to the extreme length it has reached this season. I am well aware that this statement has been made with more or less truth for many succeeding seasons, also that the general reckless extravagance of womankind has been discussed by those who think they know all about the matter, until the subject has become hackneyed and threadbare, yet it is nevertheless a truth, and one well known to those who have studied the matter with discriminating eyes, that most women with their innate love of all that is pretty and becoming are inclined to be extravagant, and that womenthe woman of the smart set, I mean. who is supposed to set the pace in fine dressing-were never more recklessly lavish than at the present moment. Her gowns are the most sumptuous that money can buy, and usually as perishable as hands her dainty neckwear is at once fragile and costly, while the wount of money represented LUCRATICISTE lingerie and fine hosiery would seem a veritable fortune to many women. Nothing suits her capricious fancy but the most delicately tinted gloves, which are irredeemably ruined by thrice wearing, while her various silken petticoats, each a dream of loveliness in itself, are taken as a matter of course. Priceless laces and embroideries are eut up in such a way that they can never be used again, while only the most expensive feathers and costliest jewels ornament her fashionable headgear. And so I might run the entire gamut of her extensive wardrobe, but time and space forbid.

A reaction is bound to come sooner or later, but just when or where is beyond the ken of man. That there is no sign of the immediate approach of any such change is evidenced at all the leading shops, where the dis-fashion just now is the new summer dress materials, which have been displayed within the past few days. It takes a readier pen than mine, and one, too, dipped in ink having all the colors of the rainbow, to describe their gorgeous colorings and manifold charms. Many of the handsomest specimens come under the head of "wash goods," which, as you know by this time, is a much misused expression. For instance, if you go into a dry goods store and ask for you one of the many new swisses sum of $2.50 per yard, or perchance fine a texture and such delicate color- exposition. ing that it would shrink and fade

I am bound to say, however, that many of these new goods are not nearly as expensive as at the first glance they seem to be, for they are of such extreme width, especially the swisses, that sin yards will be found amply sufficient for the most elaborate Not Since 1876 Has the Town Enjoyed gown. Swiss mounted over a shimmering taffeta silk is fascinating and the right thing to buy if one can afford a silken lining, but where the case is otherwise a fine French lawn answers the purpose in the most admirable manner. For those who prefer a snug bank account to fine raiment there are coollooking dimities and fine muslins galore, not to mention the many handsome silk ginghams and delicately tinted lawns that are seen on every hand and can be procured for the proverbial song. But I want to say right here that if one has to hire gowns made it is not always wise to economize in the material, for after paying the bill with the long list of "findings" tacked on by the fashionable dressmaker one soon realizes that the material itself is, after all, the smallest item of expense. The all-white costume will be the favorite this summer, just as it was last, and, although a somewhat extravagant fashion, it is one so universally becoming to both old and young that no one ought to demur at its continued popularity. There is a decided feeling in favor for summer gowns of grays and gray. greens, while later on we may expect bountiful mixture of green and gray, than which there is no more beautiful combination.

Fashion makers claim that the really pictureque tea gown cannot be constructed unless lace and chiffon play an elders said: "This is a peculiar city important part in the manufacture for revival work. Of course the beautiabout and admired in the world of ful soft panne velvets are much superior, but these are not at everybody's command, and for home wear at least velveteen suits the purpose most admirably. Crepe de chine is another material much sought after for tea gowns, and, as its draping propensities are vastly superior to all the other fabrics, it is deservedly popular.

Within the week I have seen some delightful specimens of the tailor's art in the way of tailor gowns which are being constructed against the day of need. Some follow rather closely the general style of those worn late in the fall, while in others the changes have been radical in the extreme. Not a few are made with their tight-fitting jackets cut with the new habit back. I am wondering how this style will take, as I am in the singing, but to-day the choir quite sure it can only be seen at its does it all, or most of it. Washington Preacher Wants to Shake Up the Capital City.

a Period of Genuine Religious Enthusiasm-Cause of the Stagnation.

[Special Washington Letter.]

66 X 7 HY cannot we have a glorious revival of religion that will shake the pillars of the capitol and make this seat of government tremble before the power of fervent prayer?"

The preacher is one of the most eloquent and earnest of the clergymen who use their best endeavors in this city to increase their church membership and enhance the general morality of the community. He repeated his question again and again, and then announced that an effort would be made at the next Thursday evening prayer meeting to start a re-

On the following Monday morning there was a preachers' meeting and our enthusiastic clergyman declared that if the 200 preachers in this city were imbued with the true spirit they could start a fire which would burn out all evil in our midst; and he cited the Pentecostal work of the twelve apostles, who were so successful as soul winners.

The other preachers were not awakened by his zeal. They were more conservative and did not believe that such a revival as was desired could be brought about. One of the center, especially when congress is are all extremely conservative about not believe in revivals anyway, but regard them as periods of nervous excitement rather than periods of couls saving."

"Nevertheless their souls can be placed beside one showing the ideal saved," persisted the worker for a mixture of lace and chiffon like the revival, "and for one I am going to insist upon an effort."

"There has The old elder said: been no revival here since 1876, when the District of Columbia and accomplished a great deal of good, some evidences of which still remain apparent to those of us who knew of the steady and perfect conversions of that time, but where are you going to get your Hammond? When will there come another?"

Well, the revival will be attempted, anyway. There is determination in I shall make the effort in spite of all r; a kind of determination which always produces results, but not always such great results as are desired. One of the veteran members of his church to-day said: "I shall try to stand by the pastor and do all that I can, just as I have done in all revival efforts for more than 40 years. But religion is not now what it was Even the religion of Wesley is not what it once was.

"In the old days every member of the church considered it his duty to seek converts and point out the way of salvation. No stranger could come into the church without having his hand clasped and listening to some words of welcome. Nowadays it is different. People are dignifiedly escorted to seats, but dignity exceeds cordiality.

I got religion, and I simply went to work like the men who were old men then, and I began talking my religion to all of the young men about me, asking and begging them to come to church with me. I could sing, and I induced a number of young men to come with me and join in the singing. Very soon they were singing the songs of Zion as earnestly as I was. So you see Moody was not the discoverer of the power of song. Charles Wesley lived and sang and worked long before Sankey came forword with his evangelical wonders." One of the superannuated preach-

We could get up big revivals in Baltimore, or Hagerstown, or even at Harper's Ferry, in the old days, but Washington was cold and unresponsive. We could get up tremendous revivals at Bladensburg, where statesmen would come from Washington to fight duels and kill each other."

"The religious newspapers and the secular papers show that great revivals are being held in other cities," says the enthusiastic preacher, "and without the church.

He demanded Detachment of the Forty-Fourth Inthat each one should send a child of his own, or some neighbor's. He was a good singer, and he developed all of the power there is in sacred music to aid in the work. Therefore he succeeded. One of the most successful teachers in Sunday school work here says: 'The real reason why revivals are so difficult to start and maintain is that the church members themselves need religion and true conversion. They are all good people, but they are all selfishly trying to live correct lives, and save their own souls. In that frame of mind they do not seem to care about saving the souls of others. No general could win battles if his soldiers were simply trying to save their own lives, instead of going forward with him. It seems to me that no preacher can produce a revival unless he can revive his own church before he tries to revive sinners. No preacher can do it all alone, but must have his congregation aroused to a pitch of his own en-

That seems to cover the case rather succinctly, not only for Washington, but for all communities. The religion of love is a religion of unselfishness. Men and women who are trying to save their own souls may miss the mark, because their best lives can be but philosophic lives, like the perfect livings of intellectual and moral Buddhists and Brahmins or Mohammedans.

"I want no notoriety over this work," says the preacher. "I want to assume that all of the other preachers are as sincere and earnest for the salvation of souls as myself. I do not want to be singled out as doing any more than a sacred duty. I want to be able to ask the other preachers to send as many people to the revival meetings as they can; so that there shall be no rivalries and jealousies. I hope that within a week or ten days some of these preachers will come with me and take part in the exhortations from my pulpit. Therefore I do not want any notoriety, lest some of them might suppose that I was magnifying myself, when my whole endeavor is to magnify the Cross and hold it aloft, so that all may see it." True worshipers everywhere, those who believe in old-time revivals of religion because of the necessity of saving souls from perdition will be

Lilly Dale School Closes.

Saturday, Jan. 26, was a gala day in the history of district 47 in old Crittenden, for on that day closed one of the most successful schools that has ever been taught in this district.

Despite the mud, rain and sleet patrons and friends began to arrive at an early hour, and in due time the house was filled almost to overflowing. When all were comfortably seated a surprise awaited the scholars-a basket filled with candy, and after this another one for the visitors. After the bask. ets had been passed and contents noted with care, came the distributing of prizes to those who had secured the most head marks in their respective classes.

The prizes were then awarded as follows:

May and Elva Jacobs, Wreatha Brown, Eckles Rorer, Victor and Allen Young.

When this was done, dinner was called and a sumptuous table was spread, loaded with the sweets and fat of the land, to which all were invited to partake. Dinner now over, the Woodall bank appeared on the scene and rendered some "Impossible! It is wonderful to think that it can go to Antwerp without a break, and thence, with only one other stoppage, at Brunswick, right on to Berlin.

"But how shall we hit on the locality? That will require some fixing up."

"Leave that to me, dear boy! I have calculated it all to a nicety. I shall ever be thankful that my father persuaded me to serve in the navy rather than in the army for my term of conscription."

Blouses.

Blouses now can be really lovely, even the simplest. For 5 o'clock tea, or even theater wear, there is a new kind of gauze, white, shot with gold that makes an ideal garment, requiring but little trimming beyond a tucked collar or net, lace or plain chiffon, perhaps run through with a suggestion of black velvet and gold ribbon, tied with a wide knot of a colored or black glace.

A great deal of individuality is shown in the blouse, and, above all, in the putting on of the same. If you really are in a hurry, never don a blouse without a coat, for it must be carefully adjusted by the aid of pins. Another e of manhood, yet, exposed to the item to be observed in wearing the blonse is that everything be perfectly enably then have expected to be fresh. "AMONG THE OZARKS." The Land of Big Red Apples is the title of an attractive and highly interesting book recently issued. This book is handsomely illustrated with yiews of South Missouri scenery, including the famous Olden fruit farm of 3.00 acres in Howell County. It pertains entirely to fruit raising in that great fruit belt of America, the southern slope of the Ozarks, and will prove of great value, not only to fruit growers, but to every farmer and homeseeker in other States looking for a farm and a home. This book will be mailed free. Address J. E. LOCK WOOD, Kansas City, Mo.

Two Trains a Day to Texas.

The Cotton Belt Route, via Memphis, offers you two daily trains to Texas: One leaves at 9.20 a.m., the other at 8.30 p. m. The trains from all principal points arrive in Memphis morning and evening in plenty of time to make this connection.

The Cotton Belt offers you the quickest and shortest route to Texas, without change of cars. Both day and night trains are equipped with comfortable Cosches and Free Reclining Chair Cars; also Parlor Cars Cars by day and Pullman Sleepers at night.

Write and tell us where you are going and when you will leave, and we will tell you what your ticket will cost and what train to take to make the best time and connections. We will also send you an interesting little booklet, "A Trip to Texas."

Violent calomel purges or griping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time. Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! (Look out for imitations and substitutes or you can't get results. Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long-tailed "C" on the box.) You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are getting sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It is a starter for the chronic allments and long years of suffering that come afterwards. No matter what alls you, start taking CASCARETS to-day, for you will never get well and be well all the time until you put your bowels right. Take our advice; start with CASCARETS to-day, under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded.

THE PRIZE ESSAY.

"The Best State in the Union, and Why it is the Best."

This country of ours, the United States, is broad and long, containing many divisions-different in soil, climate and people.

Kissed on the extreme north by the breath of the "Frost King," fanned on the south by the soft breezes of the great gulf, girdled on the East by the magnificent Atlantic, on the west by the snowy peaks of the Rockies and the perfumes of California's flowery valleys. We have States with the ing Monday. temperature and soil of every coun try on the globe. In Main there is the health giving odor of the pines, the fine prairie country in Minnesota, the "Land of Minnehaha;" in Wisconsin the green forests are mirrored in her great lakes; then there is Ohio, where the "queen city" sits enthroned; best girl Sunday evening. Pennsylvania, the State the illustrious "Quaker" loved best; West Virginia, where the great rivers smile at each other and agree to mingle as one stream; Great New York we acknowledge as our richest State; the wide Dakotas and fair Arizona; California's goldenlined valleys; Alabama and Mississippi, rich garden spots of the South; and shall we forget Virginia? the "Mother of Presidents," broad Missouri and Kansas, where the wheat fields gleam like "oceans of manna" to feed our millions Illinois, whose shores are washed by great Michigan's waters; Florida, where our pale invalids are nursed back to health; Tennessee and Georgia, the Carolinas, rich in all that goes to make up a fine

It is true the New England States have their fine schools, the Middle States their manufactories, electric railways and millionaires, the Western States their fine mines, big trees and health giving climate; the Southern States cotton fields and manufactories of fine cigars, and where the "Father of Waters" goes flowing by rich cities, on and on to where the Crescent City's tropical beauty entrances the senses; but to the Central States belongs Kentucky

It is true that the older and wealthiest Staes cry "Progress! Progress!" but in the future drawing nigh Kentucky will rank with the greatest.

All these, we say, are great and beautiful, but why does the canny Scot love his broad "Frith," or the hardy Swiss love his mountain home, nor would change it not for any fertile valley on the earth? Or why does the Andilusian boy cling to the orange groves of his native valley, and the Norseman his hut in the land of the "Midnight Sun?" It is his home, his native land.

So our Kentucky, we claim, is the best State in the Union. She has rivers broad and long, tal mountains, rich valleys, untold wealth in minerals, stately trees. fair maids, brave men and swift horses

She was the land loved by the red man when he hunted for "cane and turkey," her climate is temperate, her soil is the soil of every other State in the Union; besides all this, Kentucky was the home of Clay and the birth place of T. Flanary farm. Breckinridge, Lincoln, and last, but not least our own martyred Goebel.

"The moon beams clearer, the grass grows bluer, and the sun shines brighter in our Old Kentucky sky.
